

ORLAND PARK WELFARE TO HOLDBABY DAY

The second Wednesday of each month is babies day at the Orland Park school, the babies are given a room all to themselves, where they are weighed and measured and then examined by the doctor and can get acquainted with the nurse.

We have 62 registered, but we want to know all the babies living in the township of Palos, Orland and Worth. When they are six years old we transfer them to the school registry. By that time they are fine healthy boys and girls.

The purpose of the Welfare station is to call the mothers attention to the physical defects of the child and to help her with its feedings.

Do not bring a sick child to a Welfare station, but take it to your family physician at once.

The nurse is always at your service and will be glad to make a home call any time you need her.

TINLEY JUNIOR GARDEN CLUB

By Fern Fulton
Through the kindness of Mr. John Boeyer, the Junior Garden Club had a very interesting and educational trip on Armistice Day.

Twenty-six of our members were present taking the 8:30 train in. We were met at the LaSalle St. Station by Mr. Boeyer with a large bus, taking us to the Garfield Park conservatory, where we had a guide, (Mr. Frank K. Balthis) take us thru and explain to us about the plants and flowers.

The chrysanthemums were gorgeous. We were then taken to the International Harvester Co. where we saw them make twine, bags and also bagging the twine which was very interesting.

Next we were treated to a delicious dinner and what an appetite we had!

After dinner we were on our way to Lincoln Park where we went thru the conservatory; the flowers were beautiful.

We all enjoyed seeing the animals and the fish aquarium, from here we were taken back to the station in the bus and what a glorious time we had.

I know we will never forget this interesting day and again we wish to thank Mr. Boeyer very greatly.

MOKENA LUTH. CHURCH WILL HOLD THANKSGIVING SERVICE

On Thanksgiving day the congregation will have a special service at 10:30 in the morning in English.

MRS. CHRISTIAN ROEMER DIES AT ORLAND PARK

Mrs. Christian Roemer, aged 72 years, died Sunday evening at her home in Orland Park following a long illness. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon from the late home to the German M. E. church near Tinley Park. Rev. Mr. Jochum, pastor of this church and Rev. Paul T. Sanders, pastor of the Orland Park M. E. church officiated.

The deceased is survived by her husband, many relatives and friends.

HENRY YUNKER TO CONDUCT RODEO CO.

Henry Yunker, residing on the Lincoln highway in New Lenox township has gone into the Rodeo business for himself and is known as "The Yunker Rodeo Co." He will stage a rodeo on his farm on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 23rd and also on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 30.

Plan $10,000 Building For Orland Park

A new restaurant and apartment house is being planned for Orland Park. The new structure is to be located on the Louis Daniels property at the junction of 143rd and route 51 east of Orland Park and will be built of brick at a cost of $10,000.

According to the present plans the building is to be 40x30 feet, two story with a five room apartment upstairs. The foundation has been completed.

Tinley Park Legion Notes

It was the good fortune of Tinley Park Post to have a visitor at the meeting of November 17th, Mr. Fred Busby of Advertising Men's Post. Mr. Busby has made an extensive study of the problem of Americanism and he delivered a very interesting and instructive address on that subject.

A bunco and card party is being planned by the Post to be held the evening of Dec. 2nd at the Legion-Community Hall. A gay time is in prospect for each one who attends. As the proceeds of the party will go into the Post Service Fund, which is used exclusively to relieve distress of people in the community, it is the hope of the members that the affair will be a huge success.

Tinley P. T. A. News

The regular meeting of the P. T. A. was held at the Village hall Nov. 14. A large crowd enjoyed this afternoon and many things of interest were discussed.

It was decided to have members save all the tin foil that was possible and turn this over to Mrs. Dorothy Campbell or Mrs. Mesenbrink to be used for a needy purpose.

A vote was taken to see how many mothers were in favor of school being closed at 3:30 instead of 4 o'clock. The ayes won so now it will be for the directors to decide.

During these days when it gets dark so soon it is quite a help for the children to reach home before it gets dark, especially for those who live any distance from school.

There will be more news next week; so watch this space for announcements.

The program committee met with Mrs. Swisher at her home Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Florence Anderson was present, taking the place of Mrs. Florence Fitchau in making arrangements for our December meeting. Miss Donovan's room will entertain at this meeting. And besides our regular meeting the committee has a surprise for each one in keeping with the Christmas time. Date is Dec. 5th so every one try to attend.

ADULT EDUCATION TOPIC AT ORLAND P. T. A. MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of the Orland Park P. T. A. was held Thursday evening, November 13th and the program of the evening was devoted to the subject of "Adult Education" and "The Relationship exerted by parental school, church and civic influences on the child".

Frances E. Wettemore, noted educator and in charge of adult education of the Chicago Board of Education gave an interesting outline of the work being accomplished in the adult classes of the night schools of Chicago.

A paper on the work of the P. T. A. was read by Prof. A. E. Wood and the discussion was led by Rev. Paul Sanders and participated in by practically the entire audience.

Mrs. Wade Thomas entertained with several piano selections and Mr. Wade Thomas with a number of vocal solos.

ORLAND PARK P. T. A. BUNCO

On Friday evening, Nov. 14th the first series of bunco and card parties was held by the Orland Park P. T. A. A capacity crowd was present and every available table was filled, both at cards and at bunco. Prizes of unusual attractiveness were furnished and competition was keen. Refreshments were served following the awarding of the prizes.

IMMANUEL LUTHERAN CHURCH

MOKENA TO CELEBRATE 80TH BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY, SUN.

Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock par Wannemacher, John George Geuther and Henry Werner. The congregation began in a small frame church about 2 1/2 miles south east of Mokena. In the year 1915 the congregation built a new church in Mokena and by God's grace has grown into a fine congregation numbering 160 souls. Since 1918 the congregation has had its own residential pastor and has its own church and parsonage and a two acre cemetery near Frankfort, Ill. The present trustees of the congregation are: William Abbe, Fred Werner and John Schilling.

Immanuel Lutheran church was organized on the 4th of November, in the year 1850 and was recorded in the county court at Joliet, Ill., in Book T on page 135 on the 23rd of November 1850. The trustees of the congregation at that time were: Cas-

CHRYSANTHEMUMS
Row on row of blossoms fair
Nurtured and cultured with infinite care

Patience, the horticulturist's share
With God to paint the colors rare.
Members of the Mokena Garden Club attended the annual chrysanthemum show at Garfield Park conservatory, Tuesday, Nov. 18th, accepting the cordial invitation of the West Chicago Park Commissioners.

A personally conducted tour, including a lecture by Mr. Hudson of the Conservatory Staff, was especially appreciated by the group.

The stupendous floral exhibit is most outstanding this season—575 varieties of chrysanthemums—comprising over 6500 potted plants, and 350,000 blooms, several plants each having 700 exquisite blooms.

In addition to the show, the group visited the Succulent House, which contains a wonderful collection of plants from arid regions South West U. S. and Mexico, and also the Cactus House, Fern and Tropical plant rooms.

Later by courtesy of Miss Bertha Benson this same group of ladies was conducted through the new Board of Trade building, and visited the observation tower. The ladies most heartily thank Miss Benson for her thoughtfulness.

Tinley Drive To Aid Needy Gains Headway

The drive launched by the Tinley Lions Club to raise clothing, food and money for the relief of the needy families of Tinley has been conducive of good results. A meeting was held Thursday evening of this week at the village hall at which members of the Lions Club and representatives of the other public organizations of the village decided to co-ordinate their efforts and plans to carry on this worthy work. All donations can be left with the Tinley Park Rock Island station agent.

ORLAND LEGION POST ORDERS FLAGS

At a meeting of the Orland Park Post of the American Legion held last Tuesday evening, the committee in charge of raising the necessary funds to purchase equipment and supplies announced that close to $200.00 had been subscribed. While this amount is not quite sufficient to take care of every need, yet it was decided to go ahead and order the colors and equipment as it was not anticipated that there would be much difficulty in raising the balance.

As soon as the necessary paraphernalia arrives, Commander "Manny" Schussler intends to hold the formal constitution of the Post and installation of officers.

Mokena Parent Teachers Association Sponsors Card Party November 24th

Hear Ye, card fans from far and near, there is to be a 500 and bunco party for you and yours Monday night Nov. 24th at 8:00 in the school auditorium. Come, bring yourself and all your friends for an evening of cards and merriment.

GEO. J. HACKER SERIOUSLY ILL

George J. Hacker, head of the New Lenox Lumber Company and former Mayor of Mokena, was found unconscious and lying in a pool of blood in the lumber office Friday morning by his nephew, Philip Hacker. He was rushed to the Silver Cross hospital, Joliet, where he was given a blood transfusion that night, his son-in-law, Ceward Batson giving the blood required. Mr. Hacker has been suffering with stomach ulcers for some time and was the breaking of one of these ulcers which caused the hemorrhage, it is said.

Mrs. F. Weitendorf, Sr. Claimed by Death

Mrs. Fred Weitendorf, Sr., 75 years old of Frankfort, died at 11:30 o'clock Monday night, Nov. 17, at her home, after a short illness.

She is survived by three sons, William, Fred and John of Frankfort, and three daughters, Mrs. Mary Werner of New Lenox, Mrs. Freda Marti and Elizabeth of Frankfort. Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at 1:30 at the home and 2 o'clock at St. Peters Evangelical church, the Rev. G. Gerhold officiating. Burial was in the Pleasant Hill cemetery. She was a member of St. Peter's Evangelical church and also a member of the Ladies Aid Society of the church.

Tinley Red Cross Drive Now On

Mrs. H. W. Wyman, chairman of the Red Cross Roll Call in Tinley Park, today reported that the membership response to date has been fair but that a renewed effort would be needed during the coming days to allow the Red Cross to reach its goal.

The quota for the Chicago area is 225,000 memberships. More than 2,500 women are striving hard to reach this quota, and the Roll Call results in general have been gratifying.

"Our need this year is immeasurably greater than it has been since the war," James T. Nicholson, Manager of the Chicago Chapter, said today. "We not only must carry on a regular program, but have entered into the Governor's Unemployment Commission Plan, and are already dispensing relief in this direction. Thousands of garments, held in reserve for disasters, have been released to the families of the unemployed, and the volume of calls upon the funds of the Red Cross in the families of disabled ex-service men has doubled within the last two weeks."

"The disabled ex-service man is the first to lose his job, and the last to be taken back. For this reason the work of the coming winter will be heavy."

ENTERTAINS

MOKENA 500 CLUB

Mrs. Otto Bartels entertained the 500 Club at her home Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Arthur Hall won first prize, Mrs. Fred Steinhagen second and Mrs. Harvey Rieb consolation.

MOKENA P. T. A. MEETING TO BE HELD NOV. 25th

The regular monthly meeting will be held Tuesday, Nov. 25th in the school auditorium at 3:30 p. m. There will be two girls from the high school to take care of the small children while the meeting is in session. A good attendance is desired.

Tinley Rose Chapter Garden News

Minnie A. Pursifull, Press Chairman

A call meeting was held at the home of our president, Mrs. Edw. F. Towle, Friday afternoon, Nov. 14. Members brought samples of their soil, to be sent to the agriculture Department at Urbana to have it analyzed.

Plans were also made for a public bunco. Watch for the date and listen for "Radio Announcement".

The ladies enjoyed the "Mum" Show which was held at Garfield Park.

Flowers you, with your blossoms
Thrill the hearts of the sad on their way,
You were born to fill us with gladness,
And fragrance of your heart with us stays.
Your thoughts they are silent
As thousands upon you gaze,
Your colors were sent from the heavens,
To brighten the darkest days.
The moon may bloom o'er you,
The stars may twinkle with gold,
But the "message without words" is
"Say it with flowers"
Their stories to you are untold."

New Barbershop Opens in Mokena

George Mergal of Chicago will open a new barber shop in the old drug store building across from the Rock Island depot in Mokena Saturday morning of this week. This will be a two chair shop. Mr. Mergal announces that he will do first class barbering and that special attention will be given to cutting of ladies and children's hair.

Mr. Mergal and family will occupy the Bonness residence.

New Restaurant Will Open at Orland

Orland Park is going to have another new business enterprise. Mrs. Ella Loebe announces she is going to open her new restaurant "The Purple Candle" located on 143rd street and the Southwest highway in Orland Park Thanksgiving day. Reservations for Thanksgiving dinners are being taken now.

Cow Sale Success

The cow sale held last Friday on the Cappel farm southwest of Mokena last Friday by Chas. Levy and sons of Chicago, was quite well attended. Thirty-two head of choice cows were sold. The top price was $127. Mr. Levy is getting in a few more truck loads of Wisconsin cows which, will however, be sold at his place, 6801 South Oakely ave., Chicago.

Orland Resident Observes 85th Birthday

Mrs. Betsy Austin of Orland Park celebrated her 85th birthday at her home Monday. Her two sons, John and Buel Austin of Joliet and their families were home, also Mr. and Mrs. A. Morrison of Manhattan and other relatives from Wilton Center and Peotone wee guests in the home to help the celebrant enjoy the day.

Will Open Wolf Road November 30th

The Wolf Road payment from the will and Cook County line south thru Mokena to the Hickory Creek bridge, will be opened for traffic on November 30th according to Glenn T. Fletcher, Will County engineer. The straw that has covered the road is being removed now.

A big road dedication in observance of the opening of Wolf road is being planned for the afternoon of November 30th. Public officials of Will and Cook counties and local officials will take part in the program. A full outline of the celebration will appear in next week's issue.

Committees Inspect Wolf Rd. Route Thru Cleveland Farm

Members of the Will County right of way and bond issues, headed by Fred Francis, chairman of the bond issue committee and the local Mokena road committee went over all the ground on the Cleveland farm to see which is the best way to carry on Wolf road to the Lincoln highway. The matter of whether it would be advisable to swing the right of way westward, eastward or straight thru the Cleveland timberland as originally surveyed was carefully gone over. The entire matter was taken under advisement. More particulars will be given next week.

An Oversight

In last week's report of Dad's Night in the Mokena P. T. A. notes, there was a slight mistake. Miss Isabel Boyd's name was omitted and as the P. T. A. members are especially grateful to her we would like to correct this.

It was thru her kindness alone that we were able to hear the wonderful music given by her pupils as the young people gave of their time and talents because she wanted them to come out here. There was no expense to the P. T. A. for this part of the program and there was a great deal of responsibility involved on Miss Boyd's part as she arranged transportation and also saw to it that they were all returned to their homes promptly and in good order.

Many thanks to Miss Boyd as well as to each of her pupils who helped present this splendid program for the benefit of the Mokena P. T. A.

Finish Remodeling Tinley Postoffice

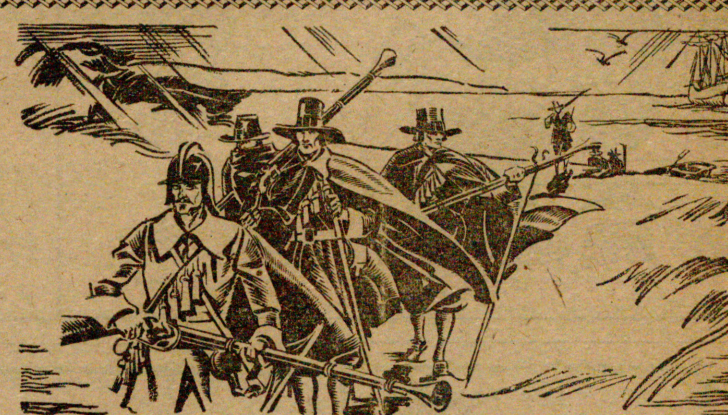

The Tinley Park Postoffice will be the scene of much activity the latter part of the week when the new lock boxes will be installed. The post office has been considerably enlarged and newly decorated. Postmaster C. Andres is to be complimented for the fine postoffice of which Tinley Park can be justly proud.

Orland and Tinley Fire Departments To Hold Dances

The Orland Fire Dept., will hold a dance at the Orland school auditorium Tuesday night, Nov. 25th. The music will be by Chuck Formento. The Tinley Fire Dept. will sponsor a Thanksgiving dance at Saenger hall, Tinley Park, Nov. 27th. Music by Tony and his Illinois Ramblers.

Out of Bounds

Count Maxence de Polignac, who has been charged with bootlegging, discussed at a tea the traffic regulations of America.

"They are excellent," he said, "but a foreigner at first finds them rather complicated and hard to understand. One foreigner said to another:

"In some American towns the streets are marked off in white squares. What does that mean?"

"The other foreigner, who was a joker, shrugged and answered:

"I guess maybe it means that if you get hit outside the lines it doesn't count."—Detroit Free Press.

No doubt about it—I am 48 and never felt better in my life—I feel like 30 and you can take my word for it—It's the Little Daily Dose of Kruschen That Does It.

Once I was fat and forty—had headaches a-plenty—Was tired out most of the time—My liver was sluggish and my bowels inactive—I searched for a real remedy and by good fortune I found it in Kruschen Salts.

Fat isn't healthy—so Physicians state, and I want to say to this world full of fat people—that the Kruschen Method of losing fat is safe, sure and sensible—just cut out sweets—pies, pastries and ice cream for a month—go light on potatoes, rice, butter, cream and sugar—and don't forget to take one-half a teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning.

I wish I could induce every overweight person on earth to try this splendid method—it surely doesn't cost but a trifle—for an 85 cent bottle lasts 4 weeks and can be bought at any drug store in the world—Get it—Grow Thin—Feel younger.—Adv.

Because of the dedication of Illinois Editors' Hall of Fame at the University of Illinois and unveiling of busts of notable Illinois editors, the sixty-fifth annual meeting of the Illinois Press association November 20, 21 and 22 is expected to draw one of the largest attendances in the history of the association. The dedicatory exercises occur at 4 p. m. on the 21st. James M. White, supervising architect at the university, is advisory chairman, and addresses will be made by J. E. Dertinger, president of the Illinois Press association; Charles F. Eichenauer, of the Quincy Herald-Whig; John H. Finley, editor of the New York Times and former Illinoisan; and Gov. Louis L. Emmerson. The university band will furnish music. The annual banquet will follow the dedication, with President Chase of the university as one of the speakers. Many noted newspaper men from outside the state are to speak at the other sessions, including George B. Dolliver, Battle Creek, Mich., president of the National Editorial association; Bruce R. McCoy, business manager of the Wisconsin Press association; Emmerson R. Purcell, Custer County Chief, Broken Bow, Neb.; C. A. Baumgart, publisher Country Newspaper Advertising, Des Moines, Iowa; Charles H. Clarke, of Iowa Newspapers, Inc., Des Moines, Iowa; George H. Gallup, Drake university, Des Moines; Marlen E. Pew, editor of Editor and Publisher, New York city; Frank W. Scott, editor in chief of the D. C. Heath Publishing Co., Boston, and Ole Buck, of Lincoln, Neb., field manager Nebraska Press association and editor of United States Publisher and Printer. Several prominent Illinois editors will also give addresses.

A White Leghorn hen in Quincy has established the nation's greatest record in continuous production, 165 eggs in as many consecutive days. She is owned by the Combs Poultry Farms, of Sedgewick, Kan., but has been on test at the state experimental plant at Quincy and during the year has laid a total of 337 eggs, the highest year's production in the records of the Illinois contest, and probably an All-American record. E. G. Horner, chief poultryman in the state department of agriculture, states also that the highest yield from any pen of five hens on test for massed production at the experimental plants located at Quincy, Kankakee and Murphysboro, appears in the report from the Kankakee unit, where five White Leghorns, owned by E. H. Rucker, of Ottumwa, Iowa, produced 1,601 eggs during the year. This is an Illinois record beater.

The board of managers of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers met for the giving of reports of all general and special committees on Wednesday and Thursday, November 12 and 13, in the Y. W. C. A. building, in Bloomington, and the executive committee convened there on Friday, November 14. The president, Mrs. Harry R. Detweiler, of Aurora, presided at all sessions. Other officers of the organization are: First Vice President, Mrs. Holland Flagler, Chicago; second vice president, Mrs. Edward Jackson, Chicago; third, Mrs. Arthur R. Williams, Normal; fourth, Mrs. Robert D. Pringle, Chicago; fifth, Mrs. F. L. Holch, Glen Ellyn; sixth, Mrs. George Rudy, Mattoon; seventh, Mrs. N. G. Symonds, Hinsdale; eighth, Mrs. C. E. Tullis, Decatur, recording secretary, Mrs. A. W. Garrett, Chicago; corresponding secretary, Mrs. R. W. Dyke, Chicago, treasurer, Mrs. W. R. Kerr, Jr., Chicago.

The drought relief committee of Illinois is urging all congressmen in the state to support a resolution to be introduced by Congressman James B. Aswell of Louisiana at the December session of congress authorizing the secretary of agriculture to make advances or loans to farmers in drought or storm stricken areas where he finds an emergency for assistance exists. A first lien on all crops during 1931 would be deemed sufficient security. Advances or loans would be limited to the purchase of food, seed of suitable crops, fertilizers, feed for work stock and fuel and oil for tractors used in crop production, subject to regulations fixed by the secretary of agriculture.

Harold Holmes won the state husking championship at the E. D. Funk farm, south of Shirley by picking 27.63 bushels in eighty minutes. He has been champion twice before. Other winners were: Second, Orville Welch, Platt county, 27.03 bushels; third, Theo Tuffie, LaSalle county, 26.93; fourth, William Wellenreiter, McLean county, 26.92; fifth, Ernest Rehn, Marshall-Putnam entry, 26.75.

Warning that forage poisoning is unusually prevalent this season has been issued by Dr. W. H. Welch, chief veterinarian in the state department of agriculture. He advocates muzzling horses used in harvesting corn and keeping live stock from grazing in the stalk fields, particularly following sudden changes in the weather. He gives as the most important causes of forage poisoning worm infestation in the corn, immature or mouldy corn and corn stalks, and the effect of sudden climatic changes upon cornstalks and corn.

Finding jobs for Illinois men and women at the rate of 300 per working day, a total of 8,019 per month, is the record of the Illinois free employment offices under the supervision of Barney Cohen, director of the state department of labor, as mentioned in a report given to Gov. Louis L. Emmerson. Of this number 2,633 were placed by the five Chicago offices and 5,386 by the offices in fifteen downstate cities. Some of the places filled are permanent and some only temporary. Mr. Cohen, in his report, said: "Every individual who can offer work of any nature can co-operate in meeting this present lack of employment by having needed work done at this time. The best skilled labor can be secured easily while prices are lower on materials for any kind of repair work. Individuals who select the present time to have delayed jobs completed are not only saving money for themselves but are performing a real public service in helping to overcome the effects of the world-wide depression. The state free employment agencies are in a position to co-operate most effectively with both the employer and the employee."

Patients at the nation's mental hospitals are increasing at the rate of 72 per day and the average daily population of these hospitals is 395,407, according to Dr. William A. Bryan, of Worcester, Mass., who spoke at the Illinois state public health conference. Doctor Bryan is superintendent of the Worcester state hospital and president of the Massachusetts Association of Occupational Therapy.

In response to a telegram from Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, asking that the United States army lend coats, blankets and other equipment that may be indispensably necessary to assist in Chicago and throughout the state for relief during the unemployment period, Secretary of War Hurley has informed the governor that, while he is without legal authority to comply with the request, he will assume the responsibility for authorizing the use of all available army coats and blankets without unduly depleting the supply for the armed forces and in the governor's opinion deemed necessary to relieve conditions of acute distress due to unemployment.

Work has been started on the new garage for the state division of highways in Springfield. C. J. Newlin, of Normal, was awarded the contract at approximately $71,000. The garage will be completed in about three months and will be used to house and maintain motor vehicles used by the highway department and the state highway police. Two other state buildings are to be erected soon in Springfield. One is the new agricultural department laboratory to take the place of the building, located near the city waterworks, which was burned several months ago. This will be built now at the southwest part of the fair grounds and cost about $50,000. The other is the new woman's building for the state fair grounds, and is to cost about $200,000.

Formal dedication of the new Springfield federal building is to be held the latter part of November, with W. Irving Glover, first assistant postmaster general of the United States, Gov. Louis L. Emmerson and postmasters and mayors of fourteen large cities in the South and Middle West invited to take part. It is planned to bring the guests to the city by air mail and passenger planes.

At the thirty-ninth meeting of the Illinois Mining Institute at Centralia, the following were elected as officers for the coming year: President, Jos. D. Zook; vice president, Geo. C. McFadden; secretary-treasurer, D. E. Schonthal. All are from Chicago.

The state sanitary water board has jurisdiction over the waters of Lake Michigan within the boundaries of Illinois, according to an opinion Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom has given Dr. Andy Hall, chairman. His opinion was requested because complaint had been made of pollution of the lake by sewage and industrial wastes discharged by cities and industries. Under the opinion the board has power to take steps to abate it.

A charter has been issued by Secretary of State William J. Stratton to the governor's commission on unemployment and relief. There are 28 directors, as follows: Victor Olander, George W. Dixon, Melvin A. Traylor, Fred W. Sargent, Agnes Nestor, D. F. Kelly, Julius Rosenwald, Edward L. Ryerson, Jr., James F. Simpson, James L. Donnelly, Thomas E. Warm weather has made it possible for state road construction to continue at the peak during much of October, 14,000 men being employed during the last week in the month. There were numerous handicaps in connection with the weather but these were not great enough to cause work to stop. A total of 102 concrete mixers, an average of one to each county, was in operation. As a result the total of roads added to the state-wide network during the year has now reached 893.75 miles. Of this total, 729.98 miles were on the state bond issue routes.

ATWATER KENT RADIO with the GOLDEN VOICE

"I know what I want"

"So do I"

... and it's going to be an Atwater Kent. What we want is performance, and so far as we're concerned there's only one choice.

We want the Golden Voice of the new Atwater Kent—good, clear, consistent reception, without a lot of noise. We want power enough to bring in distant stations. We want a dial we can read easily from any position, without straining our eyes—that new Atwater Kent Quick-Vision Dial. We want the new Atwater Kent Tone Control, so that we can bring out the low notes or the high notes as we please.

We want a radio that's always ready to go when we come to the end of a day's work. We want the kind of dependability that Atwater Kent is famous for. We want a radio from the maker who insists that farm people shall have just as good performance as city people.

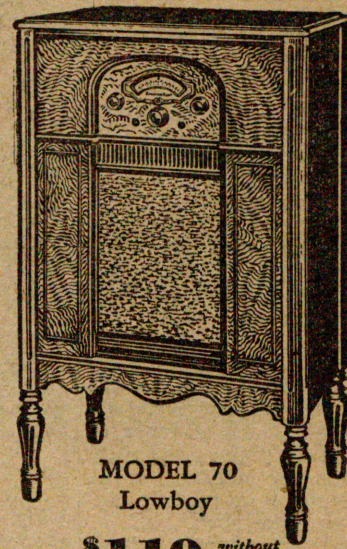

We want an up-to-date radio, with all the newest worth-while improvements—plus Screen-Grid, from the manufacturer with longest Screen-Grid experience. We want a really good-looking radio—one we can show with pride when friends come in.

We're going to put our money where our faith is, and that means one of the new Atwater Kents. When we go into town tomorrow, we're going to stop at a dealer's and order an Atwater Kent. We know what we want and we're going to get it—NOW.

The new 1931 Atwater Kent with the Golden Voice is built for either all-electric or battery operation. That's another reason why rural families all over the United States prefer the new Atwater Kent.

Appeal That Won Even

Hardened New Yorkers

A girl from the South, who had been in New York two days, was experiencing her first encounter with the late afternoon jam on the Bronx subway express. After trying vainly to battle her way into one of the trains, she went to a guard and said: "Listen here, mister, I've been trying for fifteen minutes to get on one of these trains, and it's almost six o'clock . . . and we've got company coming for dinner, so of course I've got to cook biscuits and the company will be there at six-thirty; so, honest, you've got to do something about it." The astonished guard turned and addressed the packed mob waiting for the next train to pull in. "Now, listen here, folks," he said, "this little lady's got company coming at six-thirty, and she's gotta cook biscuits, and here it is almost six o'clock, so she's gotta get on this next train, see?" The equally astonished mob opened up an aisle in open-mouthed amazement and the little gal from the South paraded into the car without brushing a shoulder.—Life.

Variation in Bees

Russian scientists have found that honey bees in northern regions have shorter tongues than bees farther south and they attribute this to an adaptation of the insect to the task of nectar gathering which differs with different plants and climates.

ORLAND PARK

Carpenters and painters are putting the finishing touches to the new addition upstairs over the Creer store building.

John Helehouse made a trip to Indiana Sunday.

The Orland band is going to play at the Lansing High School a week from this Friday.

Supervisor Charles Doctor recently visited with an old friend in Indiana whom he had not seen in 49 years. The old friend is now over 87 years old.

Judge and Mrs. Sherman Knox and A. O. Wood, principal of the Orland Public school were among the Orland folks who witnessed a shower of meteors Sunday night.

Mrs. Jennie Clark of Allegan, Michigan is visiting with Mrs. Ella Loebe.

The Orland Electric Shop of which Roy Loebe is the proprietor, has been improved by a very neat window sign giving the name of the firm, etc. This concern handles the Westinghouse products and Mr. Loebe reports the sale of a number of Westinghouse radios. The new shop is preparing for the holiday trade and will have some interesting announcements to make soon.

The Orland Park firemen have about completed arrangements for their big Thanksgiving dance to be held on the night of Tuesday, Nov. 25th at the Orland Park school auditorium. Music by Chuck Formento. Everybody is invited. Help the fire laddies to put this affair over big.

Clarence E. Beagley reports an interesting event that occurred Sunday. For about half an hour Sunday morning the atmosphere was so clear that some of the big Chicago sky scrapers were clearly visible from his farm with out the aid of glasses. That night many of the big buildings and the big gas tank at 74th street could be seen thru field glasses. The great Linbergh beacon was easily discernable.

A number of Orland people have entered the Westinghouse Radio $10,000 prize contest. Prizes will be awarded for the best 48 original and acceptable ideas for beautifying radio cabinets. Full particulars and an entry blank can be secured from the Orland Electrical Shop who are handling the Westinghouse radio.

The Orland Park Post of the American Legion met Tuesday night. The Post is prepping to secure their colors and other needed equipment. Much interest is being manifested in the local Post and a number of new members have been added.

The Orland Park School Achievement club met Thursday evening.

Judge and Mrs. Sherman S. Knox visited at the home of the latter's mother in Chicago Sunday.

The National Air Transport Corporation are pushing construction work right along on their new radio broadcasting station under construction on the Gee farm.

Seats and dishes have arrived for the new coffee shop which Mrs. Ella Loebe will open soon on 143rd st.

The Orland Park P. T. A. held their regular meeting Nov. 13th. The program was as follows:

Talk by Mrs. Wetmore, subject: "Chicago Adult Education."

Discussion on "Character Education" led by Rev. Paul Sanders.

Subject "Character Education."

Music was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas.

The parents of the intermediate grades have given best attendance in P. T. A. meetings the past month, therefore the picture furnished by the P. T. A., will be retained by the intermediate grades during the coming month.

A new student, Gertrude Henning, has entered the Orland Park High School. She formerly attended the Lindbloom High School in Chicago. She now resides at 35th street and 88th ave., Orland Park.

Thanksgiving gives Frigidaire another chance to prove its worth

The marketing starts days beforehand—celery, fruits, cranberries and, oh, so many other good things... You'll need a Frigidaire to keep them fresh and tasty.

Kitchen preparations begin early, too. A Frigidaire will carefully guard these Delicacies of the Day.

Surprise? Of course the menu must have a dish that's new and different... Why not a frozen salad from Frigidaire's cold compartment?

And afterwards when (no matter how good the dinner has been) there's much of it left... then again Frigidaire will take care of everything—keep all its savoriness intact for days until everyone is hungry again.

The popular new "Grayline" Frigidaire, with storage capacity of 5 cubic feet, is only

BIGGEST NOT ALWAYS BEST

The saying that "Fine goods come in small packages," applies to many farm products, the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation states. From the viewpoint of both producers and consumers, medium sizes often have decided advantages over the large sizes.

Until comparatively recent times, great weight and immense bulk were the primary objects of live stock producers. Instead of the tallows mountains four to six years old formerly popular in the steer market, the modern preference is for baby beefs of 1,000 pounds or less and around a year old. Behemoth hogs weighing 400 to 500 pounds and twelve to eighteen months old, driven to market on foot in former years, have been displaced by those only half a year old and weighing around 200 pounds. Lambs of 80 to 85 pounds bring a big premium over heavy weights, although it is very easy to grow them much larger.

Producing the lighter weights gives the farmer the advantage of quick maturity, rapid turnover, and less feed per pound of meat. Young animals will make 25 to 50 per cent more gain than older animals from a given amount of feed.

The small carcasses cut up with less waste to the butcher and consumer, and furnish thick light retail cuts which consumers prefer because they are cheaper and of convenient size for family use, the Foundation adds.

VIMLITE

Does egg production fall off with the coming of winter? Do you miss out on the high prices?

To keep up production use VIMLITE, a flexible poultry glass, which transmits the ultra violet rays kept out by ordinary glass, muslin or cloth. It is easy to put up—cuts and tacks easily. It keeps coops warm and dry. You can also use it to enclose a porch. The children will greatly benefit from the rays.

Sheriff Traeger Spends Eventful Anniversary

Doings of the Bremen Township
Democratic Club, Inc.
By Dr. Joseph J. Rein

The presentation at the seventy-first anniversary of our much beloved Sheriff, John E. Traeger celebrated in the Sheriff's office at the County Building was attended by William Kunkel, President, John Orgel, Treasurer, and your humble writer, Dr. Joseph J. Rein, Secretary of the Bremen Township Regular Democratic Club.

Although we always know the sheriff to be a mighty popular man, we never in our fondest dreams realized that any one individual could so deeply imbed himself into the hearts and affections of his fellow citizens as the thousands of telegrams, congratulations, and the huge truck load of floral offerings bore mute witness to Sheriff John E. Traeger's tremendous popularity evinced at his natal celebration on Thursday, Nov. 13.

During the presentation we stood in a huge office that was so crowded with giant floral pieces (the price of some of which probably ran into three figures) that standing room was at a premium. Among the great mass of felicitations and good wishes we saw telegrams from Governors of practically half of the states of the Union. Among the many foreign cablegrams we read one that originated at the Court of St. James in London. Also, we witnessed an endless stream of men and women, both the elite and the humble, pass through this flower-bedecked chamber to wish Sheriff Traeger great happiness and many more years of success in the service of his fellow citizens.

On the evening of the eventful day we gathered at the County Jail as guests of Sheriff Traeger to witness the electrocution of one Leon Brown. Fortunately from the standpoint of marring a rather happy day for the sheriff, and further from detracting from the peace of mind of your humble writer this would be the first electrocution he had witnessed, this execution was called off at the eleventh hour through a stay of sentence.

However, this disappointment (?) was immediately dissipated upon our return home, for we were dispatched on the double-quick to the home of our illustrious fellow-citizens, Charles Q. and Mrs. Margaret S. Parker of Markham where we had the cheerful pleasure of officiating at the arrival of the lustiest and prettiest pair of twins that this writer has ever participated in. As this welcome arrival took place at 11:30 p. m. of the same day we took occasion to immediately get in telephonic touch with our genial host of the day who was so overjoyed at this glorious climax to an eventful day that he requested the honor of sponsoring the twins — boy and girl — at their christening. Mr. Parker in turn reciprocated by stating that he does not know of a single individual from the president of these United States down, who he would rather have as Godfather for his lusty twins than Sheriff Traeger. Furthermore, Mr. Parker intimated to us that the male youngster of the twin shall be named John E. at the christening which shall take place in the first week of December.

A floral piece consisting of a huge basket containing seventy one large Autumn Glow Bronze Chrysanthemums embellished with a bronze lace ribbon etched with the Club's Insignia in gold was presented to Sheriff John E. Traeger on his birthday anniversary by a special committee consisting of William Kunkel, John Orgel and Dr. Joseph J. Rein.

The Big Victory Dance which was held at Kreis Hall, Midlothian, last Saturday from the standpoint of both attendance and a "glorious good time had by all" will probably go into history as an outstanding event in the annals of Bremen Township.

The piece-de-resistance of the evening, was furnished by our beloved guest of honor Sheriff John E. Traeger, who in response to a request gave a short address before the huge crowd. After thanking the people heartily for the wonderful support given to his son, John E. Traeger, County Assessor and the rest of the Democratic slate at the last election, Mr. Traeger congratulated the members of the Bremen Township Regular Democratic Club for the remarkable initiative taken by the organization in its fight to make "Bremen Township the ideal Homesite of Cook County."

The Sheriff stated that it is only through a massed effort like that of this club that the county officials may be forced to realize that equal recognition must be given to the people of the so-called country towns, that in the past has only been given to the denizens living within the city limits of Chicago. It required herculean efforts to finally subdue the continued tremendous applause which greeted the Sheriff at the termination of his talk.

Especially mention should be made of the splendid music furnished by Alexander Stensen and his orchestra. Popular tribute was heard on all sides commenting this orchestra on both the great variety and musical quality of the renditions selected.

At the comestibles counter which was officiated over by our genial chef, Mr. Shanks of Calumet City, among mouth-watering sandwiches of delicious roast beef and barbecued pork, the ambrosia of the evening was an offering of real Virginia ham baked in an overcoat of a special rye-dough mixture. Needless to say, upon the cry of "come and get it — its free" the deluge which swamped upon Mr. Shanks who is an overseas veteran, made him heartily wish he was back in the trenches.

We understand that Larry Sullivan who together with George Glynn and Joseph Sandra tended to the thirst of the crowd at the liquid refreshment counter are complaining of stiff and sore right arm joints. I wonder why?

John Orgel gracefully escorting Mrs. Green the wife of a member of the orchestra "broke the ice" by being the first couple upon the dance floor.

A very unique program "Meditations on the Life of Christ" woven in song and verse, was rendered at the Midlothian Methodist church on November 16th, by Mr. and Mrs. Dempster Yinger of Boston University.

These entertainers have been recommended as the best group in Methodism and have been on the concert platform as official representatives of the Methodist Church for some time. They have been singing before all the famous Conferences of American Methodism.

Last year they sang before one thousand audiences in thirty-four states. They have a nation-wide reputation.

All who did not hear them missed a rare treat indeed.

Through the untiring efforts of Rev. H. L. Slick, the Methodist Sunday Evening Club is progressing rapidly. The programs are very educational. It behooves every Methodist to attend and bring in friends.

The Mud of Midlothian

How in the heck did a beer barrel get into the vestibule of the Woman's Club?

Dear Uncle Casey:—

Can some one help us on this? Mr. Andrews, our editor, thinks he lost his cap at the Woman's Club, he also thinks he lost it at the Legion Hall. Believe it or not we are beginning to do a little thinking ourselves.

Where do you get that word "thinks"? And besides with all the opportunity he's had at dances and the like he probably acquired two caps.

Uncle Casey

Anything like this deserves a better fate than a place in the personal column.

Can I Learn to Fly?

by William R. Nelson

Vertical Banks

AIRPLANES and automobiles, as machines of transportation, have many traits in common, the student pilot soon realizes. But they also differ widely. The student who drives a motor car picks up certain phases of flying quickly. Other phases, however, because they are peculiar to flying, are confusing and difficult to grasp.

I encountered one of flying's paradoxes in my lesson on "vertical banks."

"In a vertical bank the controls cross," my instructor explained. "The rudder, being in a horizontal instead of a vertical position, serves as the elevator and the elevator becomes the rudder. Remember that."

He took the controls at 3,000 feet and told me to follow through while he showed me the vertical bank maneuver. It was not different from any other bank except that he held the stick over longer and, when the plane's wings were almost vertical, brought the stick to neutral and well back. To level out he moved the stick in the opposite direction and held it there until the plane righted itself.

"Bank over until that wire (meaning a diagonal brace between the wings) is parallel to horizon," he instructed. "Then neutralize the stick and pull it back to hold the ship in the turn. If the nose climbs, push the bottom rudder pedal. Remember you will be on your side. If the nose drops, push top rudder."

I banked over sharply and as the brace wire became parallel with horizon, neutralized the stick and pulled it back toward me. That movement "tightened" the circle, the elevator, being in a vertical position, acting as a rudder. To increase the diameter of our circular course I allowed the stick to go slightly forward. As it did so my instructor shouted through the speaking tube:

"Hold the stick firmly. If you increase the size of the turn we will lose altitude. Now try bringing the nose up and down with the rudder pedals."

At first the crossed controls confused me. Seeing the earth on one side and the sky on the other, also bothered. But after a half-hour of practice I had apparently mastered the maneuver sufficiently and my instructor signaled for me to return to the airport.

Taking a Ride

SOLO flying began in earnest after the last lesson, and next I was sent out without a preliminary "check flight" by my instructor. That marked the beginning of another stage in my flying course and my graduation from the ranks of the "dual" students. I, however, did get further instruction.

"What are we going to do today?" I asked as my instructor came in from the field where he had been with another student. "We?" he asked, rather surprised. "You are going to fly. I am staying here. There's your plane. It's all ready for you. I'm going to watch from the window here. Now show me some nice, three-point landings."

My heart was pounding slightly as I climbed in alone, looked about to see that all was clear and opened the throttle. I had experienced many thrills since starting the course, but none that gave me more satisfaction than that of my first "all alone" lesson.

The take-off was without incident, and as I leveled out at 1,000 feet for the trip around the pattern, I reveled in the thought that I could make those turns as I pleased without fear of being signaled for them if I chose to stretch the course here and there.

The first landing was good, and I immediately roared away again. Around and around I flew. Each time I had no trouble with any of the routine maneuvers. After a half-dozen turns about the pattern and as many good landings, I decided to fly away from the course for a little ride over the open country.

That decision and the ride that followed put more desire to fly into my blood than anything I had done. To be free to make one's own decisions and to have enough confidence in one's ability to have no fear of trouble, kindled a desire to "fill 'er up with gas and roar away" to some distant place that was difficult to control.

At 70 miles an hour one can cover considerable territory in ten minutes, and from 2,000 feet one can see so much farther away that I felt as though I had seen half of the state by the time I returned to the field.

Being away from the "pattern" gave opportunity to "hunt" for the airport as a visiting pilot, a stranger to that locality, would have to do. I found it easily.

Inland Town a Port

Rouen, a town in the middle of Normandy, is a port and a very important one. Good-sized freighters and sailing vessels ascend the River Seine this far, but have to send their goods to Paris in barges the rest of the way.

Taney Home a Shrine

The home of Roger Brooke Taney at Frederick, Md., ante-bellum Chief Justice of the United States, who gave the oath to Lincoln, is a national shrine.

THE SWANK ABOUT-TOWN FROCK; FAVOR VELVET FOR AFTERNOON

A Swank About-Town Frock.

ACCORDING to modern psychology of dress, to be merely practical is not enough for the daytime frock which must go shopping, or spend hours in the office or the class room, or serve in general for about-town wear. The well-dressed woman covets more and more for even her most utilitarian costumes as fetching materials as can be found in the fabric realm and what's more the styling of these carefully selected weaves must be "up to the mark" in point of clever detail.

In these days there are many new types of materials such as were never heard of in the yesteryears of our forebears. The story of fabrics in times of yore was completely told in terms of silk, cotton, wool, and linen. Now what do we see—the most amazing materials woven of "synthetic" yarns as "they say" which have in turn been created of man-made fiber. Thus modern weavers are doing the "impossible" and so successfully that nowadays the questions "is it all wool?" or "is it pure silk?" are falling into disuse.

Leading French couturiers as well as American designers are alike yielding unreservedly to the lure of these modern-man-devised weaves. Per example, Chanel makes the stunning frock which is pictured above of a new whipped twill fabric woven of bemberg (man-made fiber) with a mix-rendezvous, or perhaps meets her sister debutantes "at the club."

Nothing could be more charming for the debutante during the afternoon hours than the frock of transparent velvet touched with dainty alienon lace which is shown to the right in the picture below. The high waistline continues up in a point to meet a lovely soft arrangement of choice lace. The blouse is deftly draped both front and back and gives most youthful "lines."

The alluring combination of lace with lovely velvet has captured the fancy of the smart set to the extent that costumes of this character exceed in number all others at afternoon gatherings. Of course, the lace must be exquisitely fine and it must be disposed in ways unique to measure up to the standard that is set by fashion.

Especially does the lace-trimmed sleeve intrigue the fancy of designers whose specialty it is to create dressy ture of spun silk. In this instance the color is navy blue, plaided in broken white hairline stripes.

Two Models for Afternoon.

Many interesting and significant style details are featured in this arresting costume. There is first of all the youthful bolero effect. This modernized version sort of compromises between a bolero-proper and a short jacket with a one-side diagonal front fastening.

About the first impression one gets of this chic dress is "cuffs," for that is the way of cuffs this season to be conspicuous because of their novelty and their extreme "lines."

For Afternoon Wear.

"Every inch a lady" does she look, the debutante of season 1930-31, clad in a velvet gown of exquisite simplicity such as fashion bids her wear, as she makes her rounds of formal calls, attends afternoon musicale and art reception, or when she teas at five at some fashionable afternoon gowns. The lace-garnitured sleeve as styled for the dress pictured is typical of the new vogue.

Somewhat less formal but equally as modish is the model to the left. It really has quite a tailored appearance, as so many of the chic velvet afternoon frocks are wont to have this season. In accomplishing its graceful silhouette it has needs undergone an infinite amount of intricate seaming involving a side panel which develops into a draped girde which ties into an effective bow at one side.

A most distinctive feature of this gown is its seed-pearl beaded neckline, thus lace as trimming for the afternoon (evening also, for that matter) frock has a rival. It is a very flattering fashion, this of enhancing velvet with colorful, if not white, bead work.

BANANA DESSERTS

The banana is one of our most popular and well liked fruits, one we can always find in our markets and it deserves a chapter all for itself.

Banana Bavarois.—Scald one cupful of milk in a double boiler. Stir in two teaspoonfuls of gelatin previously soaked in two tablespoonfuls of cold water. Add one cupful of sugar and when cold it commences to set stir in one cupful of banana pulp and one cupful of whipped cream. Pour into a mold and place on ice to set. Serve with:

Mousseline Sauce.—Bring one cupful of milk to a boil, add one-half cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful of flavoring, mix well, set aside to cool, then add one-half cupful of whipped cream.

Banana and Coconut Dessert.—Cut four bananas each into four pieces, place in a buttered pan and sprinkle with three teaspoonfuls of lemon juice. Beat an egg white until stiff, add three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Add one-half cupful of shredded coconut, put a tablespoonful of this meringue on each section of banana. Bake until brown. Serve with whipped cream.

Banana Bread Pudding.—Take three slices of bread or three rolls, break into small pieces. Pour over this two cupfuls of milk, one-half cupful of sugar, four bananas sliced, stir in lightly two beaten egg whites and bake for half an hour. Serve hot with a sauce using the two egg yolks beaten well, one-fourth of a cupful of sugar and a cupful of boiling milk; stir and flavor, then serve hot. A little lemon juice and rind may be used for the flavoring.

Banana Fluff.—Cut one-half pound of fresh marshmallows into small pieces. Whip one cupful of heavy cream, add one teaspoonful of vanilla, one-half cupful of sugar, a bit of salt, stir in the marshmallows, one cupful of broken nutmeats (less may be used), and one cupful of banana pulp finely mashed. Serve with crushed strawberries, or over ice cream of any flavor.

Bedouins Prize Camel

Above All Possessions

A camel is considered worth more than a wife to Bedouins. Their incomes, sometimes their lives, depend upon their camels. A camel which can travel without food or water for ten or twelve days is valuable indeed. But some will do so for fifteen or even twenty days. The saddles for these prized beasts are the finest that money can buy. A man who has four or five camels is considered well-to-do. One who has fifty is considered wealthy. He has many servants, and lives on the income of his camels.

The rivalry between chieftains who have 500 or 600 camels is just as intense as it often was among the cattle barons of the West. Sometimes one of the sheiks will hire Bedouin bandits to steal another's camels and start a feud that lasts for years.

Camels eat a thorny weed called gavan. The weed is so dry that it is used to start fires. The root is filled with a resinous fluid that yields almost pure glue. Some of the best glue in the world is made from it.

Let Down

Mother had been trying very hard to teach little Betty to be more polite. At last she really seemed to be successful.

"Just you see how good she is at dinner time," mother boasted to her husband.

Dinner time came. There was suet pudding.

"Betty," said the child's mother, "will you have some more pudding?"

"No!" replied the daughter.

"No what, Betty dear?"

"No fear, mother."

Composition of Pewter

Pewter is composed of tin and lead, with an alloy of brass or copper, which gives, particularly to old pewter, a mellow glow. The usual mixture is 6 to 4 parts to 1 of lead, and an old formula was 30 parts of brass to 1,000 parts of tin. A hardening process has been discovered—a trade secret—which is apparently able to overcome the softness of pewter, which was one of the great causes of its decline in the making of utensils.

Found Famous Cavern

The Carlsbad cavern was discovered by Jim White, a New Mexico cowboy. He was investigating what appeared to be an immense cloud of smoke. It proved to be a flight of millions of bats. The cave to which they led him is probably the most extensive in the world and is full of beautiful rock formation.

May Be Cotton Substitute

"Kendy" is an Asiatic plant which, it is claimed, produces a fiber which can be used as a substitute for cotton.

HEAD THROB?

The woman who knows, would as soon start out without her purse! She always carries Bayer Aspirin.

When your head fairly throbs from the stores and crowds, reach for that little box. Take two or three tablets, a swallow of water, and resume your shopping—in comfort. Relief is immediate.

Most people use these wonderful tablets for something! But do you know how many, many ways they can spare you needless suffering? From the discomfort—and danger—of a neglected cold. From serious consequences of a sore throat. From those pains peculiar to women. From the misery of neuralgia and neuritis.

Every drugstore has genuine Bayer Aspirin. The box says Bayer, and every tablet bears the Bayer cross. Tablets thus marked do not depress the heart.

Facts of Interest in

Report of German Bank

Do you know that the world's annual income is $167,500,000,000? This astonishing fact is revealed by the report of a German bank, which has been studying world statistics for six years. Other interesting points from this report are: The world is drinking more milk and more tea, more coffee but less cocoa. We eat less bread, and fruit and vegetables are taking its place. We are smoking less tobacco, in spite of the large increase in women smokers. In England there are 35 people to every motor car. In America one person in five is the proud possessor of a car. One hundred and seventy-three thousand tons of artificial silk are used annually for the manufacture of ladies' stockings. If the wealth of Great Britain were distributed equally among the population, every person would receive $2,500.—Montreal Herald.

The Heights Lower Them

Ex-Mayor Hyland of New York complained in a recent address about a politician who, having risen to high office and great popularity, had turned his back on his humble old friends of the East side.

"Some politicians," said Mr. Hyland, "are like that. Yes, they are like cigars. The more you puff them the smaller they get."

Fretful DAYS Restless NIGHTS ...give child Castoria

FUSSY, fretful, can't sleep, won't eat... It isn't always easy to find just where the trouble is with a young child. It may be a stomach upset; it may be sluggish bowels.

But when little tongues are coated and there is even a slight suspicion of bad breath—it's time for Castoria!

Castoria, you know, is a pure vegetable preparation especially made for babies and children. When Baby cries with colic or is fretful because of constipation, Castoria brings quick comfort, and, with relief from pain, soothes him to restful sleep. For older children—up through all the school years, Castoria is equally effective in helping to right irregularities. Just give it in larger doses. What a comfort Castoria is to mothers!

Get the genuine, with Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on wrapper and the name Castoria that always appears like this:

Beggars Can Choose

THE STORY

Renewing a childhood attachment, Ernestine Briceford, of a wealthy family, is attracted by Will Todd, newspaper artist, son of a carpenter. Ernestine's sister, Lillian, knowing their father would disapprove, urges her to end the affair, but Ernestine refuses. They make a runaway marriage. Briceford is furious, but helpless, as Ernestine is of age. Loring Hamilton, lawyer, wins Lillian's consent to be his wife. Will and Ernestine begin their married life in a single room in a humble neighborhood. John Poole, Will's best friend, gives a birthday party for Ernestine at Ruby Pastano's resort. Pastano irritates Ernestine by criticizing Will for bringing her to such a place. Conscious of approaching motherhood, Ernestine opens a savings account. Will's father dies suddenly. Lillian and Loring are married. Will's mother dies immediately after the birth of Ernestine's baby.

"What has friendship got to do with business?" Loring asked, and his own face flushed with resentment. "I tell you I've got to make new contacts if we're to bring a different kind of clientele into the office. Besides, I didn't disapprove of Will knowing him. It was only his taking you to that dive. Do you think I would mix Lillian up with that crowd?"

"I can't see any grand difference," retorted Ernestine. "Lillian isn't a baby. She's your wife, anyhow. Besides, the Pastanos are all right—all of them. I know them well, and the two girls are as fine as any I have met. There's not a month passes that we don't visit them, or they don't call. Mr. Pastano admires Will. He once hurt my feelings, and he's been making it up ever since. We've been friends without asking about his political activities or how he makes his money."

"It's all very well for you to take an attitude with me," declared Loring, "but I've come home with the determination to make money—and a lot of it. Chicago is rich. I may as well take some of it as others. And if an acquaintance with a powerful man like Pastano falls to my luck, I'll pursue it. Will would want me to."

"Will would," admitted Ernestine, but her looks were cold. "You've changed, Loring. You used not to be so ambitious."

"I've acquired a new sense of values," he admitted. "Of course I'm not saying at all that a man should stick at nothing to make money. That's a mistake, and no good anyhow. But I've been around—I saw one thing everywhere. It is the passion for the possession of money—as much as a man can lay hands on."

"Don't be silly, Loring," said his wife mildly. "Look how happy Ernestine is, and she's as broke as broke."

"I am happy," declared Ernestine. "Yes," admitted Loring, "but that is because your capacity for happiness is great. Your pleasure in your marriage and your child wouldn't be spoiled at all by more comforts."

"I don't want anything changed." "Not now—not at this moment. But if you'll be honest with yourself, you'll find that one reason for your contentment is your great expectations for the future. You feel that your condition is only temporary. Come now, Ernestine—Isn't that so? You are confident that there will be money for you and Will, when Peter grows older, and Will's work develops into more importance. Being poor can be a game if it's only an interlude. But if you had to look forward to nothing else—"

The truth of his logic hurt Ernestine unbearably. "I don't care whether Will ever makes money or not," she declared passionately, almost in tears. "You think you don't," said Loring inexorably. "But Will wouldn't say that. Every man wants money—every woman wants her man to have it. It's a symbol of power. If Will doesn't get it he'll feel that he's failed your confidence in him."

Ernestine found herself trembling. Lillian picked the baby up and dandled him and spoke quietly to Loring. "You are disturbing Ernestine and it isn't a bit nice of you. All this shouting makes me wonder if you doubt your own ability."

She took the baby and put him in his mother's arms. Loring apologized. "It's a bad habit I have—arranging my own thought in an argument. It doesn't mean a thing—sophistry pure and simple. I know you are sincere, Ernestine. Don't pay any attention to me."

The talk fell into safer lines, but Ernestine was no longer happy. Loring got out his car, and, with Lillian and Ernestine in the back seat with the sleeping baby, he drove to her home. They left her now as they had left her in Erie street, disrupted, unhappy and at odds with Will.

She was awake when Will came in, and she fixed a light supper for him and told him all that Loring had said, with some small editing.

"He's a capable lawyer, I suppose," Will said. "And if Ruby wants to give him work to do, and Loring wants to do it, what's the difference? He's not the only lawyer that would like to get his fingers into Pastano's pie. But anyhow, I've got something to tell you. Underwood's going to New York, and Tucker's to be head of the art room."

Ernestine felt a cruel shock of disappointment. She knew Will had expected this—had hoped for the job himself.

"But Tucker's so young," she protested.

"It isn't that—he's capable. I'm glad he got it," said Will.

Ernestine thought of what this job might have meant. The pay was nearly double. They could have rented this house and, with the rent and the increase, moved into an apartment in Ravenswood.

"Oh," she cried to Will, agitated at her own mental processes. "It's so hard not to consider money. Not to want it! Not to care! I don't want to be greedy and grabby. I don't want to crave success. But I am—I do. Isn't it horrible?"

He looked at her with some humor. "You aren't greedy and grabby, sweetheart. And as for success, there's a legitimate way to want that—not for the money but for the work. I don't think this has any effect on my future. It's really an executive position, and I'm a solitary worker. I'd be no good at bossing. It's an editorial job, and Tommy has an editorial slant on things. He's fitted for it."

A few days later he came home with a shining face.

"I'm to be Poole's assistant," he said. "Do you realize what this means to me? It's worth ten thousand in cash—to work under him. If a person went to him and offered a hundred dollars a lesson, he wouldn't teach him to draw, but would curse him out of the office. And he'll teach me, and I'll be paid for it. It means no more night work. Ten till six. I do detail in the art room until Mr. Poole comes in and then I work for him all afternoon. He does a copy for a New York syndicate every day, and there's always work to plan ahead and sketches to lay out. He's been boozing a lot lately, and I think McDermott feels that if he has somebody to help him he'll keep ahead and not run so close to publication. Wiston didn't want to send me in there—but Poole insisted on me." He sighed with happiness and added, as an afterthought, "It means another five-dollar raise—maybe more later."

He was so thrilled and excited that Ernestine commanded her heart to yield its disappointment over Tommy's job. But she could not see any real future for Will in losing himself in the great man's shadow.

"I don't want mamma to know," Ernestine said. "I'm afraid she won't go to Europe. Besides, you know what a fuss there'll be."

"Then don't tell her," said Will in his simplicity. "It isn't really any one else's business, is it?"

Ernestine sighed. "You don't know how they'll take it. Of course it's their business—they'll have enough to say. And I feel embarrassed with mamma. She'll wonder why I didn't tell her."

Will kissed her cheerfully and went away to his beloved job. He was radiant and happy and his happiness seemed to affect her inversely. Every day was an adventure to him.

"Tommy gives me plenty to do," he admitted one evening. "Tommy's a good boss. He keeps us all humming, and gives every fellow the kind of job he can do best. But it's the work for Mr. Poole that makes up for any chores. Ernestine, I tell you he is a great man. He comes in there—sometimes he doesn't know whether he's eaten or not, but as soon as he gets in that little office, which fits around him like a glove about a hand, he begins to function—the way his mind works is always a surprise. What's the matter, honey?—you're not eating."

Ernestine leaned on her hand and her eyes filled with tears. "I hate to have mamma go away now," she said.

Will's methods were infantile. "Then tell her. You know she'll stay in a minute."

"Go on talking about the office, please—so I can think."

Will laughed. He took a half-dollar from his pocket and spun it on the kitchen tablecloth.

"I won me fifty cents, shooting craps at the office," he said. "We can go to the movies."

Ernestine plucked the fifty-cent piece from his fingers, and he made a pretense at regaining it.

"Now my thinking process is entirely disrupted," she told him. "I thought Mr. Wiston was going to fire the next person he caught shooting craps in office hours."

"I don't believe he'll do it," said Will comfortably, and Ernestine did not believe it either. The men were always matching pennies or rolling dice or making up pools.

Will pushed back his chair, came around and cupped Ernestine's face in his hands, kissed her cheeks and lips and pressed her eyelashes down hard with his caresses.

"Don't be blue, honey—don't worry," he bade her cheerfully. "You're the prettiest, sweetest woman in the world. It's natural for us to have a family. You're not going to be unhappy about the new baby, are you, Ernestine? It's the way of love."

"I know," she said. She drew him down and kissed him. But her face was strangely sad. "Nothing can make me unhappy, Will, as long as we love each other. I get hurt because we go for weeks without seeing my family—I seem to be drifting away from them. Mamma and Lillian are always so busy, and papa is in New York. And I get proud and avoid them on my part. But as long as we have our love for each other—this oneness—it's the best thing in life—what can we lack?"

He picked her up, sat down in his mother's little rocker, cradled her, sang silly songs in her ear and teased her. But after a little while he was talking about the office again, and she was resting against him, entirely inattentive, her thought on her own affairs.

CHAPTER VIII

Will and Loring

Loring succeeded in securing for Ruby Pastano the deed and title to the old LeQuinn place in the restricted colony at Langley lake. Ernestine was filled with indignation that he should do such a thing.

"Mamma won't like it at all," she told Lillian. "LeQuinn's land runs right down to ours with nothing but Stone creek between the two places. You know how it will be with the Greeks there. The house will simply be bursting with visitors all summer. They will have speed boats, and there will be children in the water from morning till night."

"But I thought you liked them," protested Lillian. "You are friends of theirs. Mrs. Pastano is so happy about it, I thought you would be delighted, and so did Lorie. In fact he counted on your help in calming mamma if she objected."

Ernestine shook her head.

"He can do his own calming. It's plain to me that Loring's ideas differ from ours. Will and Ruby Pastano are real friends, yet Will would never have thought of selling that place to Ruby. He fits into his own place, in Chicago, but he won't fit in there. The people—the Hendersons and the Mayces and the O'Tooles won't be kind to them. They'll not belong to the country club, nor be in the tournaments. I suppose it's not my place to worry about it, only I am thinking of mamma."

"Mamma won't go there after this summer, or next. Didn't you know, darling, that this stone-merger thing is going to make papa rich? You know, papa owns altogether nearly seven quarries in Indiana where some of the best limestone is cut, and then he has proxies for the Langley quarries. For the last year he and Lorie have been buying options and small interests in other quarries. Now they have made a merger. The quarries are worth at their present rating five or six million dollars altogether, but the merger will be worth twenty-five million. Don't you see what it means?"

Ernestine stared at her. "Papa—worth millions?"

Lillian nodded with complacent pride. "Yes, and Loring is getting some of the stock. He is to be counsel for the merger, and he has a holding. You don't need to worry about mamma at Langley lake. I'm going down to open Lake Haven next week. Can't you come with me, instead of waiting for Will's vacation?"

"I don't like to leave Will alone in Chicago, in the heat—" said Ernestine. "But I am leaving Loring. Are you well, Ernestine?"

"My feet bother me," Ernestine admitted. "I asked Doctor Grey about it, but he didn't say much. He's put me on a diet. I'll be all right."

"I think you ought to stay at Langley lake all summer."

Takes Much Water to Supply World's Cities

Have you any idea how much water the average city dweller uses daily? Take London, with its gigantic population. Here the authorities have to supply an area of 558 square miles, and give the 7,000,000 people the water they need. Would you have imagined that each of these demands no less than 36 gallons every day? Yes, that is only the average supply per head per day. In the dry, hot weather the amount required for each person becomes 40 gallons, or more than a barrel of water per day for each man, woman, and child. London is not the thirstiest town. Scotland consumes more water than England. In Glasgow and Edinburgh, for instance, the average consumption per head is not 36, but 37 gallons; and to Helensburgh, in Dumbartonshire, belongs the distinction of being the most thirsty town in the whole of the British Isles. Here they take 81.7 gallons per head. One reason given for Scotland's large consumption is that the water supply is much better than in England.

THE RICH YOUNG RULER, REFUSING A LIFE OF SACRIFICIAL SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 10:17-27.

GOLDEN TEXT—And he said unto them all, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Man Who Failed Jesus.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Man Who Failed Jesus.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Choices Which Must Be Made.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Following Christ Means.

I. The Young Ruler (v. 17).

For a complete view of the characteristics of this young man see also Matthew 19:16-30 and Luke 18:18-30.

1. His virtues.

(1) He was courageous.

He was a man of high standing—a rich young ruler (Luke 18:18, 23).

With manly courage he came to Jesus.

(2) Earnest (Mark 10:17).

He came and knelt before Jesus, thus showing his earnest sincerity.

(3) High aspirations (v. 16).

He wanted eternal life. He felt the need of preparing for a life beyond.

(4) Pious and moral (v. 20).

He professed to have conformed to God's only law from his youth.

(5) He believed that Christ could inform him of the "good thing" to be done to inherit eternal life.

2. His errors.

(1) About Christ (v. 16).

He esteemed Jesus to be good, but did not apprehend him as God.

(2) Concerning himself.

He was self-righteous. He thought he was good and that he could do something good.

(3) Concerning eternal life.

He had a defective theology. He thought that eternal life could be obtained by good works.

II. Jesus Dealing With the Young Ruler (vv. 17-22).

Jesus skillfully led the young man to see his errors and then put his finger on the weak spot in his life.

1. His question: "Why callest thou me good?" (v. 17).

His object in this was to lead the young man to a correct apprehension as to who he was. Before giving him a chance to answer he declared that only God was good, as if to say, "I am good and therefore God."

2. Jesus' answer to the young man's question (vv. 17-20).

"If thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments." Christ met him here on his own ground; namely, that of the law. He took the young man's level that the young man's real worth might be revealed. If one insists on getting life by doing something, the law declares what must be done. It must be perfectly kept.

3. Christ's command (vv. 21, 22).

Replying to Christ's citation of the commandments of the law, the young man glibly asserted that he had kept them from his youth up. He no doubt was sincere, but deceived. In Christ's command to go and sell his possessions and distribute to the poor, he put his finger upon the weak spot.

4. The young man's fatal decision (v. 22).

His going away sorrowful proved that he was covetous and did not love his neighbor as himself.

III. Jesus Showing the Peril of Riches (vv. 23-27).

This teaching concerning the peril of riches was most timely. Covetousness was fast taking hold of the people. Even one of his disciples, Judas, was well under its sway.

1. It is difficult for the rich to enter into the kingdom (vv. 23, 24).

This difficulty lies not in the possession of riches, for a man may possess great riches and be an heir of the kingdom. The difficulty lies in trusting in riches.

SEED BARGAINS OFTEN COSTLY

A farmer offered a fine horse at a low price would immediately become suspicious and look for defects, but, when offered seed at a figure below prevailing prices, he sometimes believes he is getting advantage of a bargain, says the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. Bargains in both field and vegetable seeds are found only in the best seed available. The best grades will require less seed per acre, will contain fewer weed and other foreign seeds, and will produce stronger, healthier plants. Low grade cheap seed often contains such a large proportion of dead seed and weed seeds that the price paid for the live seed content is actually considerable higher than reliable dealers ask for good seed. The contamination of the ground with weed seed is a still more serious objection. Quality generally should be the first consideration and price secondary when buying seed. Nor should the farmer be misled by extravagant descriptions of the seed. It is well to ask for samples just as the seed dealer would do in buying from the farmer. Seed should not be used until the farmer is sure of the variety and its adaptability, purity and vitality. The Foundation also suggests that farmers should take advantage of the protection which state laws controlling the sale of seed give to them by buying only from dealers who comply fully with those laws.

Weak Humanity

It is as difficult to get a man to admit that he snores as it is to get a woman to admit her age.
